

Case Study: Contract Manufacturing Solar Crystal Growth Furnace

A global provider of solar cells needed to mass produce their silicon crystal growth furnace (photo at right) on a very aggressive time table. PEKO provided a complete manufacturing solution to reliably produce cutting edge technology in a controlled manner, insuring successful international mass deployment. Our in-house contract manufacturing capabilities, strong program management, coupled with sound engineering delivered on target, yielding our clients success in an extremely competitive market.

